Mr. Hardy's Note on the Story.

The story entitled "The Distracted Preacher," which Mr. Evans has chosen this year for the basis of his comedy, with some alterations of his own, is founded on certain smuggling adventures that occurred between 1825 and 1830, and were brought to a close in the latter year by the trial of the chief actors at the Dorchester Summer Assizes before Baron Bolland for a desperate armed resistance to the Custom-house Officers during the landing of a cargo of spirits. The details of the tale were related to the writer in his boyhood by one or two of those who were engaged in the business, being then old men. Some incidents that came out at the trial are also embodied.

In the culminating affray, a little later than the episodes used in the story, the character called Owlett was badly wounded; and several of the Preventive-men would have lost their lives through being overpowered by the far more numerous body of smugglers, but for the forbearance and manly conduct of the latter. This served them in good stead at their trial, in which Erskine prosecuted, and the defending counsel was Earle. Baron Bolland's summing up was strongly in their favour: they were merely ordered to enter into their own recognizances for good behaviour, and discharged.

O my trade it is the rarest one, Simple shepherds all— My trade is a sight to see; For my

O my trade it is the rarest one,
Simple shepherds all—
My trade is a sight to see;
For my customers I tie, and take 'em up on high,
And waft 'em to a far countree!

My tools are but common ones,
Simple shepherds all—
My tools are no sight to see:
A little hempen string, and a post whereon to swing,
Are implements enough for me!

To-morrow is my working day,
Simple shepherds all—
To-morrow is a working day for me:
For the farmer's sheep is slain, and the lad who did it ta'en,
And on his soul may God ha' mer-cy!
